Conquering the Digital Divide for Our Elder Relatives

Libraries Now Offering Access to Generations on Line Software

The IBM Global Work/Life Fund and The AT&T Family Care Development Fund, a joint project of AT&T, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW), and the Communications Workers of America (CWA), have tapped their employees to help bring access to the Internet – and knowledge of how to use it – to senior citizens around the country. In 2002, the two companies collaborated to sponsor a $660,000 grant to Generations on Line (GoL) and SeniorNet, Inc. Since then, more than 170 AT&T and IBM employees have suggested libraries, senior centers and nursing homes in 30 states where their parents or grandparents live to receive Generations on Line, a free simplified Internet program created exclusively for seniors.

In addition to the efforts of IBM and AT&T employees, GoL provides its program to public libraries, senior centers and nursing and retirement homes across the country. Through the IBM and AT&T funding, GoL is proud to provide IBM and AT&T employees with a complete list of libraries and SeniorNet sites throughout the United States that currently offer Generations on Line. This list includes, but is not limited to, sites nominated by IBM and AT&T employees through this project.

To nominate a site (library, senior center, nursing home or retirement community) in a location near your elderly relative, send an e-mail to generationsonline@wfd.com requesting a nomination form. For more information about Generations on Line and a preview of the software, go to www.generationsonline.org.
